[REDACTED] information concerning LCN matters, [REDACTED] John Roselli and got a version on Frank Sinatra's activities in Las Vegas which resulted in Sinatra's discharge as an entertainer at the Sands Hotel. Informant stated that Sinatra, upon learning that his wife, Mia, had lost $20,000 gambling at the Sands Hotel, became furious and purchased $50,000 worth of chips in an attempt to win back his wife's losses. Within a 45 minute interval he had lost the $50,000. Upon learning of Sinatra's losses, Howard Hughes (not identified) ordered Sinatra's credit stopped. Sinatra, intoxicated, tore his room to shambles. He then obtained a golf cart and drove it all around the front of Sands Hotel. Carl Cohen (not identified) attempted to calm Sinatra; however, Sinatra threw some chips in Cohen's face at which time Cohen punched Sinatra in the mouth causing the loss of teeth. Informant advised that it was indicated that this activity was planned in order to have Sinatra's contract at the Sands broken so that he could later be placed in Caesar's Palace, since this establishment had Family* interests. Informant did not believe this was planned, however, to the extent that Sinatra would loose two teeth.

This reference indicated that Roselli was active in LCN matters.

Honorable John D. Ehrlichman
Legal Counsel to the President

Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Ehrlichman:

This letter is being written to you to outline briefly association for many years by Frank Sinatra with many leaders of La Cosa Nostra. As you know, that organization is the dominant force in the country's organized crime underworld.

Sinatra, who was born December 12, 1915 (or 1916), in Hoboken, New Jersey, was associated early in his singing career with the late notorious Willie Moretti, a long-time La Cosa Nostra leader in northern New Jersey who became the victim of a gangland type slaying in 1951. Also quite early in his career, Sinatra was quite friendly with Paul Emelio D'Amato, a La Cosa Nostra member who, for many years, was the proprietor of The 500 Club, a night spot in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Sinatra's association with D'Amato, who has served a penitentiary sentence as a panderer, continued over the years with Sinatra appearing at The 500 Club during many summer seasons. It has been reported that during some of those appearances, Sinatra rented one or two entire sleeping floors in the Claridge Hotel in Atlantic City for party purposes, the party actually being a cover for clandestine meetings of La Cosa Nostra leaders.

D'Amato and Sinatra were associated in the operation of the Cal Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe, Nevada, during 1963. Salvatore "Sam" Giancana, long-time "boss" of the Chicago "family" of La Cosa Nostra, was frequently Sinatra's guest at the Cal Neva Lodge during that period. These connections on the part of Sinatra provided a basis for the revocation of his gambling license in the State of Nevada and the disposal of his interest in the Cal Neva Lodge as well as the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Sinatra was present in 1947 in Havana, Cuba, with top leaders of La Cosa Nostra who had gone there to meet with Salvatore Lucania, more commonly known as Lucky Luciano, former "boss of bosses" of La Cosa Nostra in the United States. Luciano had entered Cuba surreptitiously from his native country, Italy, to which he had been deported upon his parole from a New York State penitentiary where he had been serving a sentence on conviction for compulsory prostitution.

Sinatra has long been very friendly with the Fischettis, particularly Joseph and Rocco. The Fischettis were connected with the Chicago "family" of La Cosa Nostra once headed by their cousin, the late Al Capone. Their deceased brother, Charles Fischetti, was once "boss" of the Chicago La Cosa Nostra.

In addition to the foregoing,

[REDACTED]

It is thought that this known and alleged connection of Sinatra's with La Cosa Nostra leadership might be of interest to you.

Sincerely yours,

Miss Nancy Sinatra
9000 Sunset Boulevard
Los Angeles, California 90069

Dear Miss Sinatra:

I have received your letter of November 20th and appreciate your interest in communicating with me in connection with the book you are writing about your father.

In response to your request, I remember, in particular, a telephone conversation I had with your father in connection with the kidnapping of Frank, Jr. This took place on December 11, 1963, and I told your father how pleased I was that Frank, Jr., had been safely returned. I recall pointing out to him that although he would now be besieged by inquiries from the news media, we still had numerous productive leads to pursue and would be able to do so only if the case received a minimum of publicity. Your father, of course, cooperated in every possible way. Within a short time, our investigation was completed and early on the morning of December 14th, I had the pleasure of telephoning your father again to inform him that the kidnapers were in custody.

Please feel free to use the foregoing in the manner you indicated, and I do hope that your book will enjoy every possible success.

Sincerely yours,
J. Edgar Hoover

Dear Mr. Hoover:

As you may or may not know, I am now in the process of writing a book about my father. To make my book complete, I feel that true experiences shared with his friends will allow the public to know the real Frank Sinatra.

I would like to know about the one moment that you have shared with Daddy that stands out as the most memorable in your mind. I am sure anything you may be able to offer will be an asset to my book. I am collecting humorous, serious, or otherwise, anecdotes, so hearing from you as soon as possible will be greatly appreciated. I know my dad would be pleased to see your story in his very own book.

For your convenience you may submit your offering either by letter, note, tape or by telephoning my secretary Pamela Owens (collect) at 278-3536 in Los Angeles and dictate to her.

Thank you, so much for any help you may be able to give.

Best regards,

Nancy Sinatra

FRANK SINATRA - Summary

Sinatra was reportedly born December 12, 1915 (or 1916), in Hoboken, New Jersey. He began his singing career in approximately 1935 and early in his career was associated with the late Willie Moretti, a long-time member of La Cosa Nostra and a leader of the organized criminal element in northern New Jersey who was executed in gangland fashion in 1951. In his early days as a singer, Sinatra was also reported to have been very friendly with Paul Emilio D'Amato, who was also identified as a member of La Cosa Nostra and who owned a night club in Atlantic City, New Jersey, at which Sinatra regularly performed. D'Amato and Sinatra were also associated in the operation of the Cal Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe, Nevada, in the early 1960's.

Over the years, Sinatra has also been identified as an associate of Salvatore "Sam" Giancana, the former head of La Cosa Nostra in Chicago. Giancana was identified as a guest of Sinatra's at the Cal Neva Lodge on several occasions in the early 1960's.

In October, 1963, Sinatra announced that he would not fight an attempt by the Nevada Gaming Commission to revoke his gambling license at the Cal Neva Lodge. The Commission had reportedly sought to revoke Sinatra's license on the ground that he entertained "underworld figure" Sam Giancana at the Cal Neva Lodge in the past. Sinatra was also forced to sell his interest in the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nevada.

In June, 1969, Sinatra was subpoenaed to appear before the New Jersey State Commission of Investigation which was probing organized crime and corruption in New Jersey. Sinatra refused to honor this subpoena and as a result, a warrant citing him for civil contempt was issued. Sinatra was purged of this contempt after testifying before the Commission on February 17, 1970, and the contempt citation was dismissed at that time. The nature of Sinatra's testimony before the Commission has not been made known.

In 1955, a security-type investigation regarding Sinatra was conducted. Investigation disclosed that Sinatra's name had either been lent to or associated with approximately 16 groups which were either communist fronts or communist infiltrated during the early and mid-1940's. This investigation, however, did not uncover any information regarding any Communist Party or communist front membership on Sinatra's part.

Attached are two copies of an FBI identification record pertaining to Frank Sinatra.

PURPOSE: Attached memorandum and ident record regarding Sinatra outline pertinent data in Bureau files regarding him and were prepared for forwarding to Commissioner Waldron, New Scotland Yard, at his specific request. qu

BACKGROUND: 3/10/70 cablegram from Legat, London, forwarded a specific request from Commissioner John Waldron, New Scotland Yard, for pertinent data in Bureau files regarding Sinatra, who has been invited to perform at a charity performance in London on May 7, 1970. This performance will benefit one of the favorite charities of the British royal family, who usually attend this function. New Scotland Yard believes that Sinatra will be presented to the queen and desires to guard against any unfavorable publicity which may result as a result of Sinatra's past affiliations with criminal and hoodlum elements in this country. qu

Attached letterhead memorandum outlines Sinatra's affiliation over the years with such well-known hoodlums and members of the La Cosa Nostra as the late Willie Moretti, Paul Emilio D'Amato, and Salvatore "Sam" Giancana. Attached memorandum also includes the results of a security-type investigation conducted regarding Sinatra in 1955, which disclosed that his name had been associated with or lent to approximately 16 organizations in the early and middle 1940's which were either communist fronts or communist infiltrated. This investigation did not uncover any actual Communist Party or front membership on Sinatra's part. qu

Commissioner Waldron has been most cooperative with the Bureau in the past and he has assured Legat, London, that any information received will be treated on a strictly confidential basis and the Bureau will not be identified as the source. qu

RECOMMENDATION: That the attached letter to Legat, London, enclosing the above-mentioned letterhead memorandum and identification record be approved and that Legat, London, be authorized to furnish the data regarding Sinatra to Commissioner Waldron of New Scotland Yard on a strictly confidential basis in response to his request. qu

In my memo of 11/5/71 details were set out concerning the travel of the Attorney General, his wife and his daughter, Marty. There have been no changes in the travel schedule; however, there has been one change in the mode of transportation.

b7C SA [REDACTED] who has been assigned to be with Mrs. Mitchell for the duration of her travels, telephoned from San Francisco at approximately 2:30 p.m. today. He referred to the previous arrangement where Mrs. Mitchell would be traveling from San Francisco to Los Angeles via Jet Star aircraft owned by Mr. Robert Flour of the Flour Corporation. Departure time is still the same but instead of utilizing the airplane owned by Flour, the party will travel on a Gulfstream II jet airplane owned by Frank Sinatra. It will be flown by a pilot employed by Sinatra named Captain Johnny Spotts. The Attorney General apparently is not aware of this change as he is en route to Los Angeles and is not due to arrive there until 5:00 p.m. today, 11/9/71. It is apparent that Frank Sinatra is becoming quite active in politics on behalf of the campaign to reelect President Nixon.

Chester Gray, advised that Gray was in Las Vegas at Caesar's Palace during the prior weekend and allegedly had some type of business contact with actor Frank Sinatra. Gray and three other individuals were arrested on May 29, 1969, at which time a large quantity of stolen securities was recovered by FBI Agents of our New York Office. On November 1, 1971, Gray was sentenced in U.S. District Court, New York City, to serve a term of three years in prison. (87-38830-208)

A confidential source who was in a position to know advised in March, 1970, that Sam Giancana, nationally known organized crime figure, had a falling out with Frank Sinatra and was reportedly watching Sinatra's activities for possible retaliation. According to this source, Giancana felt that Mr. Sinatra's main ambition at that time was to be the number one man in the Italian hierarchy in the United States.

Sinatra is one of a number of individuals who are currently subjects in an Interstate Transportation in Aid of Racketeering--Extortion investigation initiated by the FBI in February, 1971. That investigation was based on information received from a confidential source who has furnished reliable information in the past that an attempt was made to extort $100,000 from one Ronald Alpert by the use of physical force and by threatening Alpert's life. According to this source, Alpert was seeking buyers for Computer Field Expressway stock and allegedly came up with an investor who bought $100,000 worth of this stock, reportedly put up by three individuals, who were described as active in organized crime circles, and Frank Sinatra. Subsequently, the value of this stock dropped and the $100,000 investment was lost. (166-5477)

A copy of an FBI Identification Record, Number 3 794 610, was sent the White House by communication dated August 21, 1967. The files of the Identification Division reveal no additional arrest record.

We received a telephone call from the Vice President's office this morning. We were advised that Mrs. Agnew has a luncheon appointment with Frank Sinatra's daughter, Miss Tina Sinatra, tomorrow and that the young lady had expressed an interest in touring the FBI some time later that afternoon. We were informed that Tina Sinatra would be accompanied by her agent whose name is Jim Mahoney and by a young lady from the Vice President's office, Miss Connie Lykkee.

The Vice President's office was advised that we would be pleased to make special tour arrangements for Miss Sinatra and her companions and an appointment has been set up for them at the above indicated time. It was suggested that they present themselves in the Director's Reception Room where their arrival would be expected. There was no request to meet the Director.

RECOMMENDATION:

If you approve, we will have an Agent Supervisor from the Crime Records Division conduct Miss Sinatra and her party on a very special tour of the Bureau.

This is in response to the Acting Director's inquiry. Following is a current brief concerning the above captioned individual.

Sinatra, who was born December 12, 1915 (or 1916), in Hoboken, New Jersey, was associated early in his singing career with the late notorious Willie Moretti, a long-time La Cosa Nostra leader in northern New Jersey who became the victim of a gangland type slaying in 1951. Also quite early in his career, Sinatra was quite friendly with Paul Emelio D'Amato, a La Cosa Nostra member who, for many years, was the proprietor of The 500 Club, a night spot in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Sinatra's association with D'Amato, who has served a penitentiary sentence as a panderer, continued over the years with Sinatra appearing at The 500 Club during many summer seasons. It has been reported that during some of those appearances, Sinatra rented one or two entire sleeping floors in the Claridge Hotel in Atlantic City for party purposes, the party actually being a cover for clandestine meetings of La Cosa Nostra leaders.

D'Amato and Sinatra were associated in the operation of the Cal Nava Lodge at Lake Tahoe, Nevada, during 1963. Salvatore "Sam" Giancana, long-time boss of the Chicago "family" of La Cosa Nostra, was frequently Sinatra's guest at the Cal Nava Lodge during that period. These connections on the part of Sinatra provided a basis for the revocation of his gambling license in the State of Nevada and the disposal of his interest in the Cal Nava Lodge as well as the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Sinatra was present in 1947 in Havana, Cuba, with top leaders of La Cosa Nostra who had gone there to meet with Salvatore Lucania, more commonly known as Lucky Luciano, former "boss of bosses" of La Cosa Nostra in the United States. Luciano had entered Cuba surreptitiously from his native country, Italy, to which he had been deported upon his parole from a New York State penitentiary where he had been serving a sentence on conviction for compulsory prostitution.

Sinatra has long been very friendly with the Fischettis, particularly Joseph and Rocco. The Fischettis were connected with the Chicago "family" of La Cosa Nostra once headed by their cousin the late Al Capone. Their deceased brother, Charles Fischetti, was once "boss" of the Chicago La Cosa Nostra.

b7D

In addition to the foregoing, [REDACTED] that Joseph Colombo, a New York La Cosa Nostra leader, met with Sinatra [REDACTED] of Raymond Patriarca, New England La Cosa Nostra leader, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] that Colombo was asked by Patriarca to meet with Sinatra because of a close friendship between the two. In prior years, Sinatra, together with his friend and fellow entertainer, Dean Martin, became a director of the Berkshire Downs Race Track in western Massachusetts. [REDACTED]

In June, 1969, Sinatra was subpoenaed to appear before the New Jersey State Commission of Investigation which was probing organized crime and corruption in New Jersey. Sinatra refused to honor this subpoena, and as a result a warrant citing him for civil contempt was issued. Sinatra was purged of this contempt after testifying before the Commission on February 17, 1970, and the contempt citation was dismissed at that time. The nature of Sinatra's testimony before the Commission has not been made known.

In June, 1969, a confidential source who has furnished reliable information in the past advised that a group of individuals, including several members of the organized crime element in the Kansas City, Missouri, area, took a junket trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, sponsored by Caesar's Palace Hotel. According [REDACTED] Chester Zochowski, who is also known as Chester Gray, advised that Gray was in Las Vegas at Caesar's Palace during the prior weekend and allegedly had some type of business contact with actor Frank Sinatra. Gray and three other individuals were arrested on May 29, 1969, at which time a large quantity of stolen securities was recovered by FBI Agents of our New York Office. On November 1, 1971, Gray was sentenced in U.S. District Court, New York City, to serve a term of three years in prison.

A confidential source who was in a position to know advised in March, 1970, that Sam Giancana, nationally known organized crime figure, had a falling out with Frank Sinatra and was reportedly watching Sinatra's activities for possible retaliation. According to this source, Giancana felt that Mr. Sinatra's main ambition at that time was to be the number one man in the Italian hierarchy in the United States.

b7D

[REDACTED] a confidential source who has furnished reliable information in the past advised that Joseph Anthony Colombo, head of the Italian-American Civil Rights League (IACRL) and a leader of the organized crime element in the New York City area, had discussed the planned Italian-American rally to be held on June 29, 1970, at Columbus Circle, New York. According to this source, Frank Sinatra was to be one of three individuals from the show business world who would be at this rally.

Re: Frank Sinatra

In December, 1970, a confidential source who has furnished reliable information in the past advised that Frank Sinatra was the godfather to one of David Robert Iacovetti's children. Iacovetti was described as a member of the organized crime element in the Miami, Florida, area.

b1 [REDACTED]

b7D A source who has furnished reliable information in the past advised on January 3, 1973, that Frank Sinatra is a close friend of Angelo DeCarlo of long standing.

Sources who have furnished reliable information in the past have described DeCarlo as a respected member of organized crime in the United States who holds a position of "caporegima" in the Genovese family of La Cosa Nostra.

On December 21, 1972, DeCarlo was released from the United States penitentiary, Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, after a commutation of his sentence by Presidential order.

b7D A source who has furnished reliable information in the past advised [REDACTED] that DeCarlo's release came as no real surprise to certain associates of DeCarlo as they had been informed by someone very close to DeCarlo that he was expected to be released before Christmas.

b7D This source further stated that these same associates are attributing DeCarlo's release to the intervention of singer Frank Sinatra, whose close personal relationship with Vice President Spiro Agnew allegedly served as the necessary "contact." The source stated that Sinatra's efforts had allegedly been in the works for "at least a couple of months."

Information concerning Sinatra's friendship with DeCarlo and DeCarlo's release from Federal custody was furnished to the Department by Newark's letterhead memorandum dated January 11, 1973.

On May 18, 1973, Mr. Jonathon L. Goldstein, United States Attorneys office, Newark, New Jersey, advised that he was contacted on May 17, 1973, by [REDACTED] [REDACTED] claimed to have information indicating that initial contact to secure the release of Angelo DeCarlo from Federal custody was made in April, 1972, by DeCarlo to a singer with a rock group performing at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary. This singer (Frankie Valli of the Four Seasons Quartet) was allegedly requested to contact Frank Sinatra and have him intercede with Vice President Agnew for DeCarlo's release. This request was ostensibly related to Mrs. Sinatra who in turn supposedly forwarded to Frank Sinatra. [REDACTED] continued that Frank Sinatra allegedly turned over $100,000 cash to Maurice Stans as an unrecorded contribution. Subsequently, due to the fact that Vice President Agnew had been "stripped of his authority by White House aides," one Peter Maletesta (possibly identical to Peter John Malatesta who was employed as a staff assistant to the Vice President as recently as January, 1971, Bufile 161-7758) allegedly contacted former Presidential Counsel John Dean and got him to make the necessary arrangements to forward the request to the Justice Department. Sinatra then allegedly "made a $50,000 contribution to the President's campaign fund sometime during December, 1972. DeCarlo's release followed."

A summary of Sinatra's background and association with organized crime figures, prior to that information developed concerning his friendship with DeCarlo has been made available to The White House by letters dated August 21, 1967, April 25, 1969, and February 18, 1972.

While Bufiles do not disclose this information, it is recalled from recent newspaper articles that Sinatra was originally scheduled to entertain at President Nixon's most recent Inaugural Ball and he failed for some reason to make an appearance. About the same time he reportedly had a strong verbal exchange with society columnist Maxine Cheshire in which he reputedly used obscene language in "chewing her out." Most recently Sinatra did appear at The White House and entertained the President of Italy who was visiting this country.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

Receipt of your letter dated June 20, 1975, and addressed to the Deputy Attorney General is acknowledged.

Your request for a report concerning Francis Albert "Frank" Sinatra is not being processed pending notification from you of whether you have the permission of Mr. Sinatra to make such a request. Documentation of the authorization should take the form of a signed and notarized statement from Mr. Sinatra clearly empowering you to request and receive materials pertaining to him from our files.

The Freedom of Information Act exempts disclosures which would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy.
The exemption is specified by Title 5, United States
Code, Section 552 (b) (6) and (b) (7) (C).

Although the materials you have requested might include some small portions obtained from public sources, such as newspaper clippings, which would not be exempt from disclosure, I feel certain you are not seeking such materials and would be dissatisfied with such a disclosure.

Accordingly, I believe it would be pointless and a misconstruction of your apparent purpose in making this request to process it without further comment from you on the question of whether you have Mr. Sinatra's authorization.

Sinatra's Mother, 3 Others Dead

PAIM SPRINGS, Calif.—The bodies of singer Frank Sinatra's 32-year-old mother, another woman and two pilots were recovered yesterday from the wreckage of a Lear jet that crashed three days earlier on snow-covered San Geronimo Mountain.

A 17-member search and rescue team reached the plane early yesterday. The team was airlifted by helicopter to a spot only 30 yards away but spent more than two hours crawling over the snow-covered rocks to reach the wreckage.

The team moved the bodies of Natalie (Dolly) Sinatra and the others to the helicopter area where they were to be held overnight. Preparations were made to transport the bodies back to Palm Springs for official identification, probably early today.

Sinatra and his son, Frank Jr., waited at the Sinatra compound here for word that the bodies had been recovered.

Mrs. Sinatra was en route to Las Vegas for her son's opening performance at Caesars Palace when the plane crashed 9,500 feet up the mountain in the San Bernardino range northwest of Palm Springs.

Gary Students Hail Sinatra's Unity Plea, Take Tolerance Vow

CARL HERSCH

GARY, Ind., Nov. 2 — In the hearts of Gary students today burned strong flames of racial unity symbolized by (Frank Sinatra) when he came here to speak to the Gary students, whose lives have been disrupted by the anti-Negro strike incited by pro-fascist elements and the anti trust in this community.

The Municipal Auditorium, packed with Negro and white students, sang again and again with hearty response to Sinatra's plea to "end these strikes" and return to the democratic way of solving problems together.

"I know something about this business of racial intolerance," the singer declared. "At 11, I was sent to Gary, Indiana back home in New Jersey. We've talked about a lot of nasty things. Let's get on that now."

TAKE TOLERANCE PLEDGE

In a stirring address, the singer exhorted students with Sinatra's pledge of allegiance to democracy. They applauded the singer's ringing of words and sang and shouted and cheered in enthusiasm at Sinatra's rendering of Bob Robinson's "The Theme I Love You."

A climax came as the singer was introduced by a Negro student leader. At the close of the singing, the singer thought of a word.

He declared, "Let me, I entreat you, like me, understand you. I am a member of America. Bedlam broke loose in the auditorium as Sinatra stopped singing to tell the students earnestly, "You young people have made me famous. Now I want to do something for you."

APPEAL FOR UNITY

Sinatra gave a simple and direct right presentation of the need for unity of Negro and white, speaking in the language of the students themselves.

Sinatra singled out for a special and commendable group of students, the students of color, and he exhorted them to stand up for the democracy. He said that he believed that the students of color should be the ones to lead the way in the fight for unity.

The singer had won the audience the minute he stepped out on the platform and was met with a tremendous ovation.

It was felt that the singer had brought a message of unity and tolerance to the students of Gary.

Sinatra repeated the pledge that the steel town of Gary should be the place for the work over.

The stage was filled with the song leaders of all Gary schools. However, some of the leaders of the anti-Negro strike school absent themselves from the meeting. Sinatra said he would make it his business to get in touch with them before long.

Gary Students Cheer Frank Sinatra's Plea

GARY—Despite reports that Gary, white high school students would boycott the meeting at which Frank Sinatra was scheduled to speak, the singer packed a hall with nearly 3,000 white and Negro students when he flew here last Friday to give a speech on racial unity. From the moment the head of the teen-agers walked on the stage, the audience was in the palm of his hands. Sinatra was called to speak to the students after a second attempted strike of white students against the attendance of Negroes at Freerbel High School.

"I know something about this business of racial intolerance," Sinatra said. "At 11 I was called a 'dirty nigger' and 'nigger' in New Jersey. We've made a lot of people nasty names. Let's cut that out."

"You young people have a right to be angry," he said. "I want to do something for you. I was told that you had been organized to boycott the school. I said I wouldn't do that. I want to be a part of this."

Speaking in that soft, husky voice, the singer gave a speech that was both simple and powerful. He named some of the wrongs that had occurred in the school and incited the students to action. The crowd roared when he named Mayor Joseph A. Murphy and demanded that the school board take action against the boycott.

SINATRA BOPS HEARSTLING; CHARGES RACIAL SLANDER

HOLLYWOOD, April 9 (UP).—Crooner Frank Sinatra felled Lee Mortimer, New York Daily Mirror night club columnist, with a punch in the foyer of Ciro's, plush film-colony night club, because, he said today, the writer insulted him.

"He called me a Dago —," the spindly singer said, "so I let him have it."

Mortimer's report to the sheriff's office didn't exactly jibe with Sinatra's version. The 365-pound, five-foot seven-inch columnist said he was leaving the night club with a friend, Chinese singer Kay Kimo, "just minding my own business," when he ran across the crooner.

MORTIMER'S STORY

"Before I knew what happened, Frank hit me on the left side of the head and knocked me down," he said in a sheriff's report. Mortimer said Sinatra's companions held him down while the singer pummeled him "two or three more times."

Mortimer denied that he made any remarks about Sinatra, but said that he has frequently mentioned in his column that "Sinatra can't sing." He said he also had criticized the crooner's political views.

Mortimer was treated at West Hollywood Emergency Hospital and said he would see the doctor in the day in the morning about pressing charges.

So far as Sinatra is concerned, the incident is closed, he said.

The singer branded as "absurd" reports that anyone held Mortimer while further blows were struck. He said he hit him once, felled him and saw no need for more.

Sinatra said Mortimer had been "picking on me" for two and a half years in his column, which he said he had "placed on a personal basis."

One Punch Costs Sinatra $9,000

By FLORENCE MEIER

HOLLYWOOD, June 3. (NY News) — It cost boxer Frank Sinatra $9,000 today for punching New York columnist Les Mortimer last April 8 in Chinatown's Hollywood night club.

Mortimer asked in justice court here for a dismissal of his battery suit against the crooner on grounds that Sinatra had made satisfactory apology. Mortimer retained his New York office the columnist's lawyer.

It was privately learned from Mortimer's attorney that the boxer paid $9,000 to secure the columnist's freedom. Mortimer's attorney today sought only about $1,000 for dismissal of the battery charge and the motion was denied.

The boxing episode occurred in the foyer of the club as Mortimer, escorting home his date of the evening, Chinese singer May King, was about to depart from the night club.

Sinatra landed a right punch on Mortimer's nose and the columnist was knocked out.

Press Agent Hoax in Brazil Makes Hero of Wrong Actor

By David Platt

Hollywood press agents in Brazil are circulating fantastic stories down there that Gary Cooper, the Hollywood actor, is "espousing the people's cause against the merchants of war and destruction . . . defending our common ideals of peace, progress and civilization, the ideals for which Roosevelt and Stalin marched together."

Fantastic hardly the word for it. Cooper has voted the Republican ticket for years and his name has frequently been linked with undemocratic causes. If he is "espousing the people's cause," it is news to us. He like hearing all of a sudden that Robert Taylor, president of the anti-labor Motion Picture Alliance, has joined the movement for a Third Party, or that Cecil B. DeMille, the union-buster, has come out against the Taft-Hartley Bill, or that Walt Disney is making a pro-Nazi cartoon.

TRAGIC JOKE

Gary Cooper, the Simon Bolivar of Americanism—it would be the same joke if it were not so true.

I can think of only one reason why Hollywood's dollar diplomats south of the border should want to circulate these tall tales about the "tired, silent, lucky" actor who moves in the most exclusive social strata. Of course it is to boost his box-office appeal among people who are deeply concerned with the growth of fascist thinking in top Anglo-American circles since the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That many sincere anti-fascists in the southern hemisphere are being victimized by these scoundrels of the cash register, is shown by the following letter addressed to Gary Cooper and signed by several hundred "workers, intellectuals, students, newspapermen, artists and housewives" of Sao Brazil. (The signatures take up seven legal-size pages). The letter is dated July 14, 1947. It begins "Dear Gary Cooper:

"We want to communicate to you our satisfaction with your participation in the Philadelphia meeting before 90,000 persons, defending our common ideals of peace, progress and civilization, the ideals for which Roosevelt and Stalin marched together."

"In this moment, when weaklings and reactionaries make the most vicious provocations, even pushing back the things they had admired in the past, it is with joy that we see you, Gary Cooper, go further than the remarkable Katharine Hepburn, who gave us enthusiasm with her speech at the Henry Wallace meeting in Hollywood. It is with deep contentment that we see one of the great stars of the U. S. movie, as you are, espouse so bravely the people's cause against the merchants of war and destruction."

"We—workers, intellectuals, students, newspapermen, artists, housewives—want to bring to you in this letter our confidence that you and your comrades in Hollywood, as in the whole country, will know how to carry on the fight to see that the screen does not become entirely a servile instrument of warmongers and monopolists, and will help lead the people further and further until complete victory over Wall Street reaction and all exploiters of mankind is achieved."

A CHEAP TRICK

The men and women who signed the letter to Gary Cooper should know that they have been tricked. Gary Cooper has never spoken before any progressive group in Philadelphia or anywhere else. Katharine Hepburn did make a brilliant speech against 'thought-control' and 'red-baiting' at the Wallace meeting in Los Angeles. If Cooper had made any speeches, which I doubt, they would most likely be attacks on the things that Hepburn stands for.

Dear friends in Sao Paulo, Brazil—there are many Hollywood stars besides Hepburn who speak up for the ideals and policies for which Franklin Roosevelt is revered throughout the world today. Gary Cooper is not among them. He is not on your side. He never was. Your very fine letter is wasted on him. This was merely a cheap trick to get you to see his films—to take your money under false pretenses.

But let not this deceitful stunt of unscrupulous press agents in your country discourage you from continuing to express your feelings about the things that please you and disturb you to Hollywood movie stars or to anyone else in North America. Only hereafter instead of writing to a Roosevelt-hater like Gary Cooper, please—please speak your mind to such forward-looking democrats as Charles Chaplin, Bette Davis, Edward G. Robinson, Gene Kelly, Frank Sinatra, Olivia de Havilland, a rogue, Katharine Hepburn, Fredric March, and so on!

Publicity Would Re-Sinatra's Reputation

By Washington Bureau

THE REPUTATION OF FRANK SINATRA, the popular singer and actor, is being threatened by a publicity campaign which is being waged against him by the right-wing press, including magazines and newspapers. The campaign is being waged by the right-wing press, including magazines and newspapers, which are attacking Sinatra's reputation as a criminal and a traitor. The campaign is being waged by the right-wing press, including magazines and newspapers, which are attacking Sinatra's reputation as a criminal and a traitor.

Luciano, the deported Italian criminal who had served part of a long term in New York for prostituting women, but turned up in China for the social season of the criminal scum of the North American underworld.

Not long after the campaign in China, Sinatra made his way to the United States, where he was arrested and held in custody for a short time. He was then released and continued his career as a singer and actor.

ON JUNE 8, MARTINER ANNOUNCED in court that he was willing that the case be dismissed with prejudice. The judge, who was Sinatra's attorney, accepted the offer and the case was dismissed.

Soon after he was arrested, Sinatra's license to carry a pistol was revoked. The fact that he had a pistol was known to the public and this incident evoked some comment on the fact that he had not carried arms against the Nazis in the war, although in the last days of the European war, and with increasing ferocity after V-E Day, Sinatra had condemned aggressors, dictators and "intolerance."

About this time Sinatra retired from public notice. He managed with skill by George Gervais of New York, and got way out of hand. He had developed "social consciousness" and had been exploited by political parasites of the Left.

He had taken a truculent pose which, again, like his gun, drew attention to the fact that he had never raised a hand or even his melodious voice against the Nazis. When there was serious fighting to be done, Sinatra was not there. He had not been there for the U. S. to inspire the war effort. He had been a traitor. Sinatra himself admitted into a silence, but propaganda in his favor now rose as an aggressive claim.

ONE E. J. KAHN, JR., wrote a series of laudatory essays in the New Yorker which were reproduced in book form, warmed over in Look and condensed in one of the digests. A number of those columnists who publish prattle and publicity about the "celebrities," including criminals, of New York, the Miamis, Havana and Saratoga, came to Sinatra's help.

Ed Sullivan, of the New York Daily News, imagined the professional integrity of legitimate journalists who had faithfully covered the Sinatra story in the Havana. He mentioned Sinatra about a dozen times in one brief visit to Hollywood and New York to "make character" for him by proclaiming that Sinatra had turned to painting and was giving a number of his works to charity. Charlie takes a severe beating in the publicity of the glamor belt.

In the same brief session, it was observed that a number of other personalities, frequently mentioned and praised as members of the 400 of the night clubs, radio and the movies, had old court and court-martial records which were more or less forgotten.

There were smugglers who had been caught and had paid fines. There was a dwarf doctor who had tried to buy a chief petty officer's rating and a safe smuggling outfit in the war.

And there were others, such as a famous New York and Hollywood singer, and a famous and successful actor, who had been in the same kind of trouble.

There were also a number of other personalities, including a famous and successful actor, who had been in the same kind of trouble.

HE HAD A SENSE. There was nothing quite like him in the history of mass hysteria. The happy soul was staying up far into the night on the dark streets of New York. There were episodes here and there over the country, scolding, picketing, waywardness. It then became advisable to indicate that Sinatra was a very wholesome domestic fellow.

He had been hired to play the role of a fine prince in a movie version of "The Miracle of the Bells." Therefore, in a manner of speaking, it was imperative that he be deloused after his notorious association last Winter with Lucky Luciano, the deported dealer in prostitutes and narcotics, and with the Fischettis of Chicago, who are relatives of the Capones and have been associated with typical Capone business interests.

This Luciano episode had been followed by the slugging of Lee Mortimer, a New York theatrical reporter, by Sinatra, in Hollywood last April. But it was now too late to stop serious inquiries into Sinatra's past and his associations.

In anticipation of his trial in the Mortimer Slicking case, a canvass was made of his early career. The previous case turned up and Sinatra's photographs and fingerprints from the court files were sent to California.

It was in Bergen County that Adonis was arrested in 1933 on a charge of seduction and causing the pregnancy of an unmarried young woman. Incidentally, Castro's political career has been based on the pitiable pretense that he was a poor boy who was called a "Duke" when he was a child. He was not a duke, poor, however, and always had a comfortable home in Havana, where his father is a captain at the War Department, an important political figure in that jurisdiction.

Much of the same material has later appeared in book form, in street publication and in one of the weekly picture books. He was fined $1000 and sentenced to 30 days in jail. He was released on $10000 bail. He was arrested by the Bergen County Sheriff, W. Hackenschlager and his associate was Vincent...

Not one of them has ever reported this episode, the most dramatic of Simetra's life.

But what evidence that Sinatra has "several friends who will be his best recommendations" is fairly straightforward. And Sinatra's quote about one of Sinatra's friends as saying that "most persons" are always looking out to see that nothing happens to Frankie and it makes him happy to think they're tough hombres.

We are not told why they should apprehend that anything might happen to a decent man keeping good company.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK & EGLER

JOHN EDGAR HOOVER, the director of the FBI, joined Gov. Warren and Sen. Downey, of California, a few days ago in their discovery of a new underworld in the amusement industry.

On this special phase of the new problem of criminality in the entertainment trades, Mr. Hoover delivered some remarks to a class of 500 of his G-men at the Department of Justice in Washington.

"Glorious headlines announced the assassination of Bugsy Siegel, but circumstances surrounding his career in crime tell the story better than words," said he.

"Here was an individual whose life was a constant challenge to common decency. Yet he and his criminal cronies were honored and their names sought after by so-called respectable society."

Mr. H. was referring here to an account of a social party by the Eddie Cantors soon after Siegel was shot dead in the presence of another eminently distinguished Hollywood racketeer known as Allan Segely, which is an alias for Aaron Simehoff and Abraham Smickoff, originally of Biala, Russia.

ASTOR had blown some kisses after the dead of Siegel and Jimmy Durante, an old-time vaudeville player himself, saluted Siegel's memory kindly. Then, too, Hoover remembered that Siegel had been a cordial friend of an American woman of wealth who married an Italian and became, for some years, a sort of ritzstone Mrs. Astor of the Hollywood glamour set, under the title of the Countess Dorothy di Fresse.

He recalled Siegel's friendship to the film from the time the Marquis envelope showed that the Countess Dorothy until a few years ago was the mistress of the haute monde and the daughter of a Hollywood movie producer.

He pointed out that Siegel was not only a man of great wealth but also a man of great influence. He was a man who was not only a man of great wealth but also a man of great influence. He was a man who was not only a man of great wealth but also a man of great influence.

He pointed to Frank Costello, Willie Moretti, and the Adonis of the Jersey criminal scene. There is a continuing, widening web of association among these people. In Arizona last winter, an old-time Leavenworth convict with a record were turned up socially with some of the old money New Deal White House set. There are the manifestations that Siegel made when he was the host about the invitation to give a party by "so-called respectable social circles."

Now let us consider a little more closely what is published in Hollywood called "Hollywood the Life." Movies, Radio, and the "Hollywood scene."

The masthead names Jimmy Tarantino as the "Editor and Publisher." Tarantino is a swif and hustler who used to hang around Jacobs' Beach, a stretch near Madison Square Garden where the fighters, managers, and racketeers gather. He has a cheap police record in Newark and he has been a friend and protégé of Frank Sinatra.

George Evans, Sinatra's press agent and manager, ager, has been jumpy lately. This overdid their publicity. The Pled Piper theme about the hungry-looking little ragamuffins with the hollow cheeks and the innocent stare, leading millions of American young girls—just children—into insensate street commotions and "liberal" or "anti-Fascist" political riots was badly overdone.

People got inquisitive and inquired what sort of fellow this really was who was going to influence their young ones. They found out. One arrest on a seduction charge that was made.

Not too bad, but no recommendation for a youth leader, especially not when Hoover said the complaint against Sinatra was that he arrested an anti-Fascist.

Yet later in the same year, he was accused of deflowering a girl who was a house cleaner, which was similar to the time.

But it could happen in Sinatra's neighborhood in New Jersey where his tough underworld friends live. Another arrest followed for driving a hearse in a man who was a doctor and taking him with a weak pulse. Sinatra's hollered "tolerance," which is a kind of racial patriotism as the last refuge of the scoundrel.

He thought he had better not put a trial on that charge. The evidence for anything would have been and enough for the evidence that would have gone into the permanent record would have been no good for a leader of American youth. So Sinatra got an instead. Police record: two arrests.

EVANS says Sinatra's record is not so good. He says Sinatra is a man who is not so good. He says Sinatra is a man who is not so good.

But on Feb. 4, 1947, Sinatra's name was again in the news. He was accused of having a woman with him. He was accused of having a woman with him.

There was a great report that the investigation and the baby case had been finished. The investigation did not feature the case in any lead to interesting information about Tarantino. Sinatra assumed great importance in the telegram to Hoover. He himself had called the meeting of a "Citizens Committee."

MR. HOWARD is now the editor of the "The States" in which he has been a long time. He has been a long time in the States. He has been a long time in the States.

One appropriate comment from Tarantino's own essays is entitled "A Week End in the Flamingo."

This is two columns of ecstatic praise for the gangster's trip at Las Vegas. It is an admiration of "Mr. Benjamin Siegel, a handsomely groomed, tall, handsome, tanned, and smiling gent," who J. Edgar Hoover called a challenge to human decency.

Giant TV Industry Lucky To Have a Clean Union

By VICTOR RIESEL

There's one favorite son of the Democrats who will not be put in nomination though he'll help open their conclave—and that's Frankie Sinatra, who has been secretly rehearsing the Democrats' battle-hymn against the Republicans. The GOP will counter at the Cow Palace with Ethel Merman.

FRANKIE AND ETHEL have no need for more publicity, nor do they lack a stage on which to give out. They go to the political arena because they believe in their political values—as do others in the two-billion-dollar entertainment world now dividing itself into parties in our additional two-party system.

It's a long way from the day when a third party, operating underground, composed some song-and-dance songs. There's a new sophistication, a mellowing maturity, which is developing in the $612,000,000 broadcasting industry.

AND THAT'S surprising. The left wing moved in on this entertainment baby in its early days and tried to raise it on the bias.

This effort failed and the giant young industry is lucky today to have a union in the field which is clean.

This is especially due to the labors of two men—the late George Baker, long AFTRA executive secretary, and Henry Jaffe, counsel and catalyst of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

For 20 years Henry Jaffe worked to fuse the temperamental and individualistic artists—whether Shakespearian or rock-and-roll—and molded and melted them into a consciousness of group interests which did not ignore devotion to country and ethics.

THINK OF A terrific yarn in Jaffe's quick footwork in an industry where every new studio cable is suspect because it brings with it the wizardry of electronics which can wipe out jobs and change the status of even a star almost overnight.

But there is another story which, though less glamorous, is far more vital. It relates the saving of this most powerful medium, with its great impact on the young and old, from suffering the heartaches and the pocket-picking lettering politics which caused disillusioned so much travail in the past 20 years—years during which AFTRA was born and matured.

Jaffe brought together the liberals and conservatives to the union. They were able to work together for the common good inside the union. They could do this because they learned how to leave their own political differences outside the union hall and council room.

THEY DID NOT permit their union to become the battleground for their outside differences over Democrats or Republicans, the civil rights issue, conservatism or liberalism. President Eisenhower's health or Stevenson's latest poll stand operations.

Under Jaffe's guidance, the union was a sensitive but temperate body, and its members were united in their fight to bring about rights on the union floor and simply to divide their strength and let unhealthy forces exploit the split.

After 20 years, Jaffe decided to resign. He dispatched his notice to the union. Then he went out to its Chicago convention, a convention, incidentally, which is unique for it is run in one session, without adjournment even if it takes a week.

THE UNION OF actors and actresses of the airwaves refused to accept the lawyer's resignation. It is a union of actors and actresses, not of lawyers.

Pegler Sees It:

He's Impressed with Gypsy and June

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I AM STILL A callow fellow, though somewhat eroded by time and experience, but my innocent delight in a personal visit with Miss Gypsy Rose Lee and her sister, June Havoc, is the honest emotion of a cub reporter who is still entranced by interesting people.

PEGLER

Miss Gypsy's renown has been associated with lascivious, if licit, proceedings under the sign of the Minsky freres. Yet she is currently more besought socially than any other lady of her station since the reign of Lily Langtry.

Her sister, a season or two younger, is equally involved in the plot of a Broadway play called "Gypsy," which holds forth as a musical comedy but on inspection proves to be a tragedy couched in sordidness and squalor. It is the life story of two ill-used little girls and their savagely selfish and ambitious mother, a barbarian of old vaudeville who tramped them up and down the land, feeding them chow mein as their staff of life, and finally died in time to permit the sisters to glory in their unshrinking disclosure of the weird career of all three.

Though deplorable on conventional grounds, the demise of mother was a necessary prior condition of the great success of their story on the stage. Mother had a habit of suing and, were she alive, doubtless would have slapped a writ on this production alleging defamation. And she probably would have tried to cast herself in the role of mother, which, by the will of Divine providence, fell to Ethel Merman.

It is not boyish infatuation which moves me to say that the sisters are rightly and, to the amazement of many, polite. They are now deeply involved in homemade literature and their book sales may accelerate with the show.

They were, the pair of them, at an arty-literary occasion of which I speak, the most successful writers present except a distinguished general who had told all in a capital gains exploit, whose sales went up toward 80,000.

The Churchills and Roosevelts

It has been dawning and dawning upon moralists and historians that many prominent and seemingly people come from the most unpromising sources, and vice versa.

The Churchill kids and the Roosevelts, with one exception, passed on their way down two scrawny brats of the carnivals and vaudeville on their way up. To be sure, the Hovick sisters, children of a reporter in Seattle, may have sprung from remoter forebears of noble quality if obscure status. Sir Winston, himself, actually came from a sorry family whose principal virtue down to his own career was not honor nor even decency but mere success.

The Roosevelts had had "blood," including spectacular drunkards and fence-jumpers.

The annals of royalty and aristocracy are not always sweeter than those of the lowly mother who thrust Gypsy Rose Lee into strange renown achieved without sacrifice of virtue by dropping her shoulder straps and then her gown to stand briefly in the lunar glow of the spotlight.

Philip of England found Frank Sinatra in a crowded room in Hollywood with Leo Durocher, Allen Smiley, Bugsy Siegel and other such knighthood and the consort was so impressed that to cultivate his catch he invited Frank and Ava to a command performance for the Queen in London.

Hardly Deserved Such Honor

Noel Coward shook his head. Yes, yes; these were hardly the sort who deserved such honor by ancient standards. But Scotland Yard and the FBI cooperate and the Foreign Office undoubtedly knew the truth. So objections must have been raised—and waived—and who was he, though a Briton and a patriot, to cry "come, come!"

And, anyway, there had been Edward, Prince of Wales, a remarkably lively man, and, on the continent, a whole roster of royal roosters whose activities were still honored tradition in certain premises in Paris and Vienna not devoted to statesmanship or culture in the best sense of the term.

It is not for me to argue whether Clare Luce was a good ambassador, but the fact remains that she did make ambassador in Rome on an education so meagre as barely to qualify as education at all after a childhood little to be desired over that of the Hovick sisters.

I hardly know what to say I expected.

Not that Gypsy would undress impromptu and the pair of them crack coarse jokes. But one meets ladies of quality less genteel than the Hovick sisters and infinitely less intelligent.

As Pegler Sees It:

Fighting Frankie 'Can't Lick Anybody'

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

A MAN phoned me the other day from Jersey City and said, "You are usually dead right in your facts so I want to set you straight about Sinatra being a fighter. Frank never answered the goad in his life."

I said, "Who are you?"

He said, "I am his cousin. My name is Frank Garivanti and my mother and Frankie's father are sister and brother. I grew up with Sinatra and I knew him all the way. We boxed a little in a gym where a lot of fighters trained in Weehawken, but Frank never had a fight. He is excitable and he gets loaded and then thinks he can fight, but he couldn't knock your hat off with a ball bat. I am surprised how he gets away with it because a slap in the mouth would lay him dead."

I said, "But his old man was a fighter and the way I got my facts from some old timers on the Jersey waterfront, Sinatra fought preliminaries, too."

He said, "Well, I work for Holland-American in Hoboken so I know a lot of the longshoremen and I remember the time you went into that cartoon in New York when poor old Joe Ryan was on trial there, sitting all alone and all the guys who used to hang around him had run out and you walked up in the press and shook hands and wrote a writeup how they all ratted on him."

An Act of Affection

I said, "Joe wasn't so bad. But you can have that George Meany. Joe Ryan taught Meany all his tricks and George knew all about Joe for years, but he never opened his trap. Ryan made him president of the New York State Federation. So they when Mrs. Ryan was dying or buried, all Joe's dear old friends like Meany mollerred copper, but do you remember her funeral? How the funeral went down the West Side and up the East Side and every longie on both rivers came outside and stood bareheaded. That's what they thought of Joe. They still do."

Garivanti said, "Well, you aren't a kid. What do you expect of people in this world?"

He said, "You had it right about Frank's father. He was a pretty good fighter. He fought under the name of Marty O'Brien. He fought some good boys, he made some extra money because they couldn't."

Wasn't he a lieutenant of the Bonanno?

Segar, and he made captain before he retired. He was a real fireman, too. He always went inside at those big fires. They gave him a big testimonial dinner here the other night. Everybody was there. My father used to fight too. He fought under the name of Young Segar."

"Segar?" I said. "That is a funny switch for an Italian kid to take a Jewish name. It was normal for Italians and Jews to take Irish names. Like Jimmy Callahan was Sammy Lipschutz. And Hester Street Jimmy Kelly was—what was his name? You remember?"

Army Wouldn't Take Him

Garivanti said, "No, I don't. Some Italian name? Anyway, my father is still in darn good shape, boxing all the time as instructor at the municipal gym. At 63 he can still step around, but I never was any good. And Sinatra was terrible. He was too weak. You wrote where he got a 1-A card for the draft, but when he reported on Governors Island they wouldn't take him for anything after they got a look at the back of his head where he was all cut up when he was born. Take a look at the back of his head some time."

"Do you ever see him these days?"

"I see him when he plays Atlantic City. I always try to go down, but he lays me low. I can't keep those late hours and hold my job. I have to work."

"Did he always pop off that way?"

"No, not when he was a kid. You know how other kids treat a pop-off kid. But since he got into all that money and publicity he goes haywire."

"Did he ever read anything?"

"No, he never had time. He doesn't know anything about communism or democracy, but those needles tell him a lot of stuff and he thinks he is a big brain. But I am telling you one thing for sure, he can't lick anybody."

This statement is made by me so that the public will have all the facts before passing judgment in regard to my hiring Albert Maltz to write the screenplay of "The Execution of Private Slovik."

I bought the William Bradford Huie book which tells the true story of the execution of a soldier by the United States Army since the Civil War.

Since I will produce and direct the picture I am concerned that the screenplay reflects the true pro-American values of the story.

This means that the picture must be an affirmative declaration in the best American tradition.

I spoke to many screenwriters but it was not until I talked to Albert Maltz that I found a writer who saw the screenplay in exactly the terms I wanted. This is, the Army was right.

Under our Bill of Rights, I was taught that no one may prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, religion or other matters of opinion.

I am in complete accord with the statement made earlier this week by J. P. Nicola of the Catholic Legion of Decency who said, "The Legion evaluates films on the basis of art, not the artist."

As the producer of the film I and I alone will be responsible for it. I accept the responsibility. I ask only that judgment be deferred until the picture is seen.

I would also like to comment on the attacks from certain quarters on Senator John Kennedy by connecting him with my decision on employing a screenwriter.

This type of partisan politics is hitting below the belt.

I make movies. I do not ask the advice of Senator Kennedy on whom I should hire. Senator Kennedy does not ask me how he should vote in the Senate.

I am prepared to stand on my principles and to await the verdict of the American people when they see "The Execution of Private Slovik."

I repeat: In my role as a picture-maker, I have—in my opinion—hired the best man to do the job.

How Hood Got Sinatra In a Jam

Giancana Flew To Nevada After FBI Watch Ended

BY JACK WILLNER

The day after U.S. District Judge Richard B. Austin ordered the FBI to limit its surveillance of hoodlum Sam Giancana, the mobster hopped a plane for a Nevada rendezvous with singer Frank Sinatra.

The results:

The sheriff's office is embarrassed, Giancana has traded punches with a theatrical agent, and Sinatra is faced with the possible loss of his Nevada gambling license.

These developments came out of an investigation by the Nevada Gaming Control Board, which has charged Sinatra with "catering to persons of notorious, unsavory reputation."

A five-point complaint was filed by board chairman Edward Olsen with the State Gaming Commission, which will make the decision on whether to revoke the gambling license of Sinatra's Lake Tahoe resort, the Cal-Neva Lodge.

ON JULY 16, Judge Austin placed limitations on FBI surveillance of Giancana, which had been under way since 1961.

The FBI dropped its watch entirely and investigators for Sheriff Richard B. Ogilvie took up the job.

The next day, according to Nevada authorities, Giancana eluded the sheriff's men and turned up at Sinatra's lodge, where he met his sometime companion, singer Phyllis McGuire. He stayed until July 28.

Sinatra admitted to a Nevada investigator that he has known Giancana and Miss McGuire "socially" for a long time, but denied having business dealings with the hoodlum.

DURING his stay Giancana stepped into a quarrel between Miss McGuire and her manager.

A handful of resort employees joined the battle, which developed into a brawl before Sinatra stopped it, witnesses told the Nevada investigators.

A spokesman for Sinatra told The Daily News, however, that the singer was not present during the fight.

Loss of his gambling license would also force Sinatra to sell his interest in the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas.

SINATRA owns 50 per cent of the Cal-Neva stock and 9 per cent of the Sands stock, a total investment estimated at $3,500,000.

He has been licensed at the Cal-Neva since 1960 and at the Sands since 1953.

The Cal-Neva closed last Saturday in what a lodge spokesman described as a regular seasonal closing.

Sinatra was unavailable for comment. He was in New York preparing for an appearance Friday at a United Nations staff party.

Wednesday night he had been scheduled to appear at the Americana Hotel where his son, Frank Jr., was singing, but changed his plans without explanation.

The complaint said Sinatra had "maintained and continued social association with Giancana for a number of years."

Olsen added that the singer "openly stated he intends to continue his friendship in defiance of the Nevada gaming code."

THE BOARD was acting under a Nevada law which created a so-called "Black Book" of 11 persons, including Giancana, who are not welcome in the state's gambling halls. The law is aimed at keeping Nevada's legalized gambling industry free from big-time racketeers.

Knowing permitting one of the 11 on the premises is grounds for license revocation, although it is not a criminal offense.

Sinatra was also accused of threatening Olsen with obscene language in trying to get the board to drop an investigation into his relationship with Giancana. Olsen said the threat came in a telephone call Aug. 31.

The complaint accused a member of Sinatra's staff, Paul (Skinny) d'Amato, with trying to bribe two gaming agents who were checking the winnings at the Cal-Neva. No further details were given.

The board said that Sinatra's partners at the Cal-Neva, Henry Sanicola and Sanford Waterman, were blameless in the housing of Giancana, although all three would lose their licenses if the commission finds against Sinatra.

Sinatra, Linked to Mafia, Cancels Work for HHH

By Maxine Chesire

CHICAGO, Aug. 24 — Singer Frank Sinatra has canceled appearances planned here next week in behalf of Vice President Humphrey. The cancellation came after The Wall Street Journal published a story last week on the entertainer's associations with Mafia leaders.

The reason given for Sinatra's last-minute decision to absent himself from Humphrey festivities was that pressing recording commitments in California make it impossible for him to appear at all.

The singer was scheduled to be the stellar attraction at a luncheon honoring Mrs. Humphrey Sunday at the Conrad Hilton hotel. Several thousand guests and their wives were invited.

Sinatra's absence leaves the luncheon's chairman, Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke, wife of the U.S. chief of protocol, with a talent recruitment crisis. She still has a well-known singing group, the Dardanis, but she male vocalist to take Sinatra's place.

Sinatra, an ardent Democrat, and other leading entertainers, including Eddie Fisher, Jimmy Durante and Louis Armstrong, are planning to give party themselves with Humphrey as guest of honor.

Sinatra had also promised to perform at Mayor Richard Daley's host committee convention Monday night 8:30 P.M. gala that is scheduled to follow the convention's opening session. In addition, there were tentative plans to have Sinatra join other show business personalities in a celebration of President Johnson's birthday on Tuesday.

Perhaps the real reason Frank Sinatra was reluctant to perform before the House Crime Committee was the pay Sinatra, who used to command as much as $75,000 for a weekly appearance, will get the standard government witness fee, $20, plus round-trip, economy class plane fare from California. Sinatra's appearance to testify under oath what he knows about the Mafia came during his on the horse-racing business "reprieve" and a pull-down for a high government office who reportedly asked the House Crime Committee to accept a $50,000 bribe for a personal appearance. Sinatra, it was subsequently learned, was lobbied from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's office to arrange the deal, but the Gov. Agnew's press chief, denied it, suggesting "you ought to check Senator Tunney's office." Inquiries there have brought neither denial nor confirmation. Nothing in fact. One of the same committee members, while not identifying the source, admitted that "an inquiry" into the matter was made by a man "very high in government office" but that no pressure was put on the committee to accept the singer's proposition. At the same time, the committee did think enough of the "inquiry" to pass an executive motion, which it was voted to reject a deposition and demand Sinatra show up in person—which he has failed to do as of the Looked like the real thing, but it didn't fool a sharp-eyed Pentagon guard. Didn't amuse him either. He spotted an over-so-slight imperfection in punch holes which weren't as neat as they should be. The reporter wound up in court, where he subsequently wound up $50 poorer also. His problem didn't end there. Now he's faced with the messy task of another fraud—the entry on his expense account.

At dinner in a downtown Washington restaurant the other evening, one of the dudes of Apollo 16 was asked if he had noticed any physical changes since his moonwalk. "You bet. It strengthened me sexually," he said proudly. Now there's a real step forward for mankind.

Marshals Get Sinatra Alert

Washington, June 9—United States marshals armed with congressional subpoenas are waiting at many cities throughout the country for Frank Sinatra to reappear after a year in England and a period of being out of the U.S.

A state marshal in Kansas asked a local newspaper to find out if Sinatra had been in the state. The newspaper reported that Sinatra had been in the state. The marshal then wrote a subpoena for Sinatra to appear in court. Sinatra is wanted for a federal grand jury indictment in New York. Sinatra is wanted for a federal grand jury indictment in New York. BERKSHIRE DOWNS WENT BANKRUPT IN 1965.

RIZZO, WHO RAN THE TRACK, REFUSED TO ANSWER ANY OF THE 74 QUESTIONS PUT TO HIM.

IF RIZZO HAD TALKED, A COMMITTEE SPOKESMAN SAID, HE WOULD HAVE BEEN ASKED IN DETAIL ABOUT HIS ASSOCIATION WITH SINATRA.

SINATRA SAID HE MET RIZZO IN AN ATLANTIC CITY NIGHTCLUB IN 1962 AND AGREED TO INVEST IN THE TRACK.

PATRIARCA SAID HE CLAIMED THE FIFTH AMENDMENT BECAUSE OF A PENDING TRIAL IN RHODE ISLAND. OF THE QUESTIONS HE DID ANSWER, PATRIARCA SAID HE WAS ONLY A MIDDLE CLASS VENDING MACHINE OPERATOR AND DID NOT HAVE $214,000 TO INVEST IN ANYTHING.

HE ALSO SAID THAT JOSEPH "THE BARON" BARBOZA, WHO IN TESTIMONY MAY 24 LINKED PATRIARCA AND SINATRA WITH MAFIA DEALINGS AT THE TRACK, WAS "A NUTCAKE."

"HE IS LIABLE TO SAY ANYTHING TO KEEP HIMSELF OUT OF PRISON," PATRIARCA SAID.
